

NCAA Publicly Recognizes Rutgers for Continued Academic Success

Three Rutgers teams - football, gymnastics and women's soccer received recognition from the NCAA for top academic performance for their multi-year Academic Progress Rate scores. It marked the fifth consecutive year that the Scarlet Knights football program was cited by the NCAA.

The awards are given each year to teams scoring in the top 10 percent in each sport with their APRs. The APR provides a real-time look at a team's academic success each year by tracking the academic progress of each student athlete on scholarship. The APR counts for eligibility, retention and graduation and provides a measure of each team's academic performance.

The Rutgers football program was the lone state university on the list to be ranked in the top 10 percent nationally for the fifth consecutive year. In addition, Rutgers was the lone institution to win four bowl games while earning the APR honor in the top 10 percent over the previous five-year span. The Scarlet Knights continue to be one of the leaders nationally in both production on the field and in the classroom. Last year, Rutgers football team achieved the nation's number two ranking in Academic Progress Rate while earning the nation's number one mark in 2010.

Rutgers is one of only 12 Football Bowl Subdivision programs to be ranked in the top ten percent in the APR scores.

"Our focus every year is to compete in the classroom with the same intensity and commitment that we compete on the field and these programs continue to excel in both," said Director of Intercollegiate Athletics Tim Perneti. "Our department takes pride in the environment of excellence that we've created for our student-athletes to earn degrees, become leaders and win championships. This is a well-deserved honor for our coaches, academic advisors and student athletes.

The gymnastics program continued its impressive team and individual performances in 2011-12 under first-year head coach Louis Levine. The highlight of the year for the 13-11 Scarlet Knights was the team performance at the EAGL Championships. RU broke the program record for its team score at the event, passing the mark of 193.625 set just one year ago. The team continued its excellence in the classroom, as 15 student-athletes were named to the EAGL All-Academic Team tied for the most in the league.

The Rutgers women's soccer team built upon its strong foundation in 2011, as the Scarlet Knights reached their 12th-straight Big East Championship - the longest streak among conference members. Rutgers has had at least one player named to the All-Big East Team in each of its 7 seasons and the trend continued this year as Sharnnon Woeller was named to the all-conference third team. Rutgers finished with an overall record of 8-8-3, including a 3-5-3 mark in conference action, and was led offensively by Jonelle Filigno with 13 points through just 7 games. □ university's presence in Newark, New Brunswick and Piscataway

Richard L. Edwards, interim University president indicated that the blending of Rutgers and UMDNJ faculty and staff will produce an extraordinarily talented and vibrant university community. "The strategic integration of UMDNJ into Rutgers will leverage our combined biomedical research strengths to create a major academic and health science powerhouse with newly energized campuses in Camden, Newark, New Brunswick and Piscataway," he noted.

Most of the provisions in the legislation are scheduled to take effect July 1, 2013. Representatives of Rutgers and UMDNJ have formed joint integration teams to facilitate the transition. Meanwhile, the Rutgers University Board of Governors and Board of Trustees continue to review the legislation to ensure that it provides adequate financial safeguards, preserves the autonomy of Rutgers and strengthens the university. The governing boards will continue to work with the administration, the Legislature and colleagues at UMDNJ to bring about a successful integration. □

Rutgers Gymnastics Receives Perfect Score in Academic Progress Rate for Third Straight Year

For the third consecutive year, Rutgers women's gymnastics program received a perfect score and a number one national ranking in Academic Progress Rate, according to the latest multi-year figures released by the NCAA.

The Scarlet Knights achieved a multi-year figure of 1,000, which represents a perfect score, for the third straight year. Rutgers was one of 15 women's gymnastics programs in the nation to receive a perfect score and one of just six women's gymnastics programs with a perfect score each of the last three years. Its four-year APR score of 1,000 covered the academic years of 2007-08, 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11.

The APR provides a real-time look at a team's academic success each semester or quarter by tracking the academic progress of each student-athlete. The APR includes eligibility, retention, and graduation in the calculation and provides a clear picture of the academic culture in each sport. □
